PROPOSALS

By Joseph M. Sanderson,

For Publishing by Subscription,

A Biography of the Signers

OF THE

Declaration of Independence,

Accompanied with Plates.

To which will be annexed a History of the Proceedings of Congress, during the passage of the Law, and the Declaration itself, with the fac simile Engravings of the Signatures.

By JOHN SANDERSON.

TO THE PUBLIC.

When we consider the personal qualities of the statesmen whose names are affixed to the Declaration of Independence, the perilous occasion which demanded the exercise of their wisdom and deliberation, and the influence of their councils on the interests of mankind, we must acknowledge that very rarely a more imposing spectacle has been offered to the world, and we shall seek in vain in the annals of nations, for an event more worthy of commemoration, and of being cherished forever in the hearts of a grateful and generous people. The love of independence is interwoven with the frame and constitution of the human mind. It is almost the first sentiment that animates the infant's features in the cradle; and amongst all the actions and enterprizes of man, none has awaked into activity a greater exertion of the virtuous energies of his nature, none has excited a greater warmth of veneration, and has more imperious claims upon our gratitude, than resistance to tyranny and political aggression.

In all republican states the first tribute of genius has been paid to the patriot or the hero who has promoted the cause of liberty and maintained the independence and dignity of man. The animated canvas and breathing marble have rescued his features from the grasp of death, and the pen of the historian has inscribed the achievements to the imperishable records of fame. It would indeed be no favorable prognostic of the perpetuity of our republican institutions to discover an insensibility to the obligations we owe the memory of the illustrious patrons of American freedom. They have raised us, by their magnanimity, from the arbitrary dominion of a foreign power, to the distinguished elevation of a sovereign and independent people; they have asserted and maintained the imprescriptiole rights of humanity by the "mutual pledge of their pledge of their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honors;" and, as long as virtue holds her empire in the hearts of their successors, the example of these generous benefactors will not be lost to the world; their names will not pass away nor be forgotten, or their glorious deeds be confounded in the common and casual transaction of life.—Ingratitude is a vice that in nations, as well as individuals, indicates the last degree of degeneracy and corruption; it is a vice that implies the absence of every virtue; it was in the age of Caligula that the name of the Scipios was proscribed, that the state of Brutus brought death on its possessor.

"The glory of our ancestors is the light of posterity," and the homage of the living cannot be offered to the merits of the illustrious dead with an effectual or sterile admiration. Great and splendid actions will seldom be achieved by men who have humble or ordinary objects in prospect. It is by contemplating the life and character of those who are marked out from the multitude by their eminent qualities, that we become emulous of their virtues and their renown. The trophies of Miltiades interrupted the sleeps of Themistocles; and Theseus, hearing the exploits of Hercules, was fired with his spirit, and became the successful rival of his fame. The rude savage of the desert listens with rapture to the deeds of his ancestors, and hangs around his hut the emblems of his father's valour.

More need not be said to enforce the utility of the publication we have undertaken, and which we now submit to the patronage of our fellow-citizens. with a hope, that from the liberality of their encouragement, we shall be able to present it to the public worthy of their approbation. We must depend for the illustration of many of the characters of our biography, upon the generosity of their surviving relatives and friends, to furnish us with whatever interesting materials may be in their possession; for which, with our grateful acknowledgments, we promise a copy of the entire work as a compensation.

CONDITIONS.

I. The work will be published in numbers or half volumes of 200 pages, octavo, and contained in ten numbers. To the first will be prefixed an appropriate frontispiece—and the work will be commenced with the declaration of independence, with engraved fac similes of the signatures, and a compendious detail of the proceedings of congress, during the passage of the law. Each of the lives, unless when it is impracticable, will be preceded by a likeness of the person, engraved by the best artists in the United States.

II. It will be printed on fine paper, made expressly for the purpose, and delivered to subscribers at two dollars and fifty cents per number, payable on delivery.

FROM TOULMIN'S ILLUSTRATIONS OF AFFECTION.

Oh! when shall I see, now distant from me,
The sweet blooming bowers
Of infancy's hours;
The scene of my youth, affection, and truth,
Our snow-piled mountains,
The crystalline fountains,
Our valleys of freedom, the pride of the earth!
Oh! when shall I be, Helvetia, with thee?
The cline of my sires—the land of my birth.

"Dear objects of love, wherever I rove,
My father, my mother,
My sister, my brother—
And her lov'd so well, the young Isabelle,
Memory's fond treasures,
Of infantile pleasures,
Of valleys of freedom, the pride of the earth!
Oh! when shall I be, Helvetia with thee?

LONGEVITY.

Died, on the 3d ult. within one mile of the White Chimneys, in the county of Caroline, Va. Mrs. Dorethea Baughn, aged one hundred and eight years, lacking nine days; it is a remarkable fact, that this old lady was never bled and never known to take medicine of any kind. She had ten children, nine of them she raised to be men and women; the other died at about eight years old. She enjoyed her health till within three months of her death, and was useful almost to the last in carding and spinning.

In the village of Utica, N.Y. Mrs. Hannah Mott, aged 106 years, 1 month and 11 days. It is worthy of remark, that Mrs. Mott never employed a physician during her long life, except in one instance, and that within the last year.

From the N. Hampshire Sentinel, Oct. 30.

SIMEON FOSTER, a revolutionary veteran, aged ninety-five, passed through this town a few days since, on foot, and moneyless, on his way to St. Albans, Vt. his place of residence. He had travelled from home in the hope of procuring evidence, at Montpelier, of his services in the struggle for independence, whereby he might obtain a pension; but not finding his old companions in hardship living, he travelled from thence to Dunstable, N. H. his native place, where he obtained sufficient proof. On his return he spent a few days with a brother mason, who was "three years and one day older than himself," and whose constitution was as "little impaired as his own." The expence incurred by the unexpected length of this journey of more than 400 miles, had drained his purse, and he was obliged to subsist on the charity of the people, walking at from 20 to 25 miles per day. This venerable hero served through the French war—was with Putnam when that gallant officer was taken by the savages near Ticonderoga in 1758—and at the siege of Quebec the year following.

VENTRILOQUISM.

Mr. Charles, the only real ventriloquist of the present age, has returned to this city, and has advertised that he shall again exhibit a specimen of his extraordinary faculty at the City Hotel, on Thursday evening next. We presume he will have crowds to witness his performance. In addition to his powers as a ventriloquist, he shews almost incredible feats of what is called slight-of-hand; and in particular, he practically teaches the unwary youth, the danger of indulging in any kind of recreation at cards with any one whom he does not know. His deportment is that of a gentleman; engaging in his manners, and one who has seen much of the world. The following anecdotes are illustrative of his abilities. As he was riding one day in the vicinity of York, England, he observed a countryman with a load of corn, engaged in beating one of his horses most cruelly. Mr. C. alighted and remonstrated with the man, but receiving a very insolent answer, he threw his voice into the centre of the load, and represented a person there in agonies. The farmer, unloaded his cart, and when near the bottom of it, was assailed with a vociferous cry of "John, John, why hast thou so beaten thy horse?" This was too much for him to bear—the affrighted farmer, leaped from his cart, and leaving his horses and corn, exclaimed to all he met, that "the devil was on the road." At another time as Mr. Charles was on his way to his lodgings in Limerick, Ireland, late in the evening, he saw two or three fellows dragging through the streets and ill treating an unfortunate female. Mr. C. set up a loud call for the watch, who seemed to answer him instantly from many quarters—the villains were so terrified as immediately to fly in all directions, by which Mr. Charles saved their ill-fated victim from further injury. ALEXANDRIA:
WEDNESDAY MORNING, November 10.

The Philadelphia Gazette says, that since the report of the U. States bank, no price is quoted for stock.

On the 15th May last, eleven hundred and sixty loaves of bread were seized by the corporation of Charleston, on the ground that the weight was under the assize ordinance. The bakers brought suit to recover the amount, on the 2d inst. when it appearing that the assize had been illegally taken, the city council were obliged to refund to the parties.

Sunday schools are constantly accumulating throughout the country. From Virginia we hear of the most flattering result. At an examination of the Shepherdstown school, on the 31st ult. the number of scriptural verses and hymns recited by four of its scholars, were as follows:

Verses.	Hymns.
235	16	Females.
210	08
145	16
214	00	Male.
Whole No. 804	40

The Informer, printed in that town, remarks—"We feel as if we ought to say something in favor of these judicious and youthful personages, who so highly gratified the managers and teachers of this Institution with an unassuming display of their intellectual faculties. It is a correct and praiseworthy duty to state, that much applause is due to the managers, instructors and scholars of this and all other schools conducted in a like manner. We are not habituated to dealing out panegyrics, but the sterling merits of these four sunday school pupils, impell us to give this slender tribute of our approbation. To say more, would be idle—to have said less, would be ungenerous."

FIRE.

The Montreal Courant of last week, contains the particulars of a number of fires which lately happened in that city, from which we have made the following summary: The first fire commenced in the bakehouse of Mr. Girard, which destroyed three buildings, occupied by Miss Howard, Mr. Girard, and Mr. Kauntz—All insured. The second fire, which happened the following day, destroyed a house occupied by Mr. Bossange. The same evening the house occupied by Messrs. Stewart, Holroyd & Co. and Mr. Leveque was destroyed. Most of the goods and furniture were also insured.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman lately returned to Cincinnati, Ohio, to his correspondent in Catskill, dated Oct. 6.

"Yesterday 200 dollars of our paper were given for 100 dollars in specie. Eastern funds are from 50 to 100 per cent advance of ours. The times were never half as hard for any kind of business. I have not, since my return, seen in circulation any thing but our poor rags. It takes 50 cents of them to buy a pound of butter."

From the Baltimore American, Nov. 6.

A valued correspondent has handed us for publication the following translation of an important law recently made in France, relative to the abolition of the *droits d'aubane.

"Art 1—The 725th and 912th articles of the civil code are hereby abrogated and repealed: in consequence of which, foreigners will have the right to inherit, and to dispose of by will, and to receive in the same manner as Frenchmen, in the whole extent of the kingdom.

Art. 2—In case of the distribution of the same inheritance among co-heirs, in part foreigners and part French, the last shall obtain of the effects in France, a portion equal to the value of effects in the foreign country where they may be excluded from inheriting, in virtue of the local laws."

* By which the effects of foreigners dying in France are inherited by the Crown.

ARTIFICIAL NAVIGATION.

In answer to the address of the canal trustees of Utica, N. Y. the governor of the state made the following reply:

Gentlemen—As the permanent prosperity of our country must depend upon the successful prosecution of internal improvements, we cordially reciprocate your congratulations on the proceedings of this day: they are calculated to animate the hopes of patriotism and to expand the views of benevolence.

On the 4th of July, 1817, the important work which we have just seen, was commenced. And we cherish a confident persuasion, that before the termination of another month, nearly 120 miles of artificial navigation will be finished, comprehending the middle section of the Western Canal, the lateral communication to Salina, and the junction of the waters of lake Champlain and the Hudson river. We shall employ the means confided to us by the state, in the immediate commencement and vigorous prosecution of the western and eastern sections; and in the course of five years, we anticipate the completion of an easy navigation between the great lakes of the west & the Atlantic ocean.

You have witnessed in common with many of our fellow citizens, the origin and the progress of this work. You have seen the difficulties which we had to encounter, and you have zealously supported us in the execution of our arduous duties. And we sincerely hope you may largely participate in the blessings which must flow from these and all other undertakings which tend to increase the stock of individual and collective prosperity.

DE WITT CLINTON, Pres't.
Of the board of Canal com'rs.

Utica, October 23, 1819.

We understand that contracts are already entered into for the transportation of large quantities of salt from Salina to Utica, the present season, on the canal at 31 cents per cask of 5 bushels. The distance between these two places is about 55 miles, and the expence of transporting salt has hitherto been one dollar per cask. The cost of this important article at the Salina works, including the state duty is but 40 cts per bushel, and it is probable a great portion of the western section of the state will hereafter be supplied with it at a cheaper rate than our seaports.

THE NEW TRAGEDY OF BRUTUS.

The following extract from the London bills, will serve to shew the success of our townsman, J. H. Payne's Tragedy of Brutus. "The new Historical Tragedy, having now attained the utmost height of popularity and universal approbation, producing on every evening of performance a vast overflow from all parts of the theatre very shortly after the doors are opened:—its representation being nightly accompanied by torrents of the most loud and rapturous applause, and its announcement for repetition constantly hailed by the unanimous cheers and acclamations of the whole house, will be acted every evening till further notice." [Boston paper.

From the Baltimore Morning Chronicle.

A late arrival from Europe, brings intelligence of an interesting nature, and goes further and further to confirm the belief, that the existing state of repose will not be of permanent duration. We refer our readers to the details which we have given in our paper of to-day, in illustration of this conjecture.—With regard to the riots at Manchester, their suppression by military force has excited a strong and lively sensibility. Many individuals then embarked in the contest, who were no friends to the reformers in the contest. It will be remembered from this, that the grand jury refused to find any bills against the persons who were the agents in this business; so that the subject is now put out of the reach of judicial investigation. The prince regent was then addressed, and respectfully implored to issue a special commission for the trial of these offenders—a request which he has publicly refused to grant, on the ground that the ordinary tribunals of justice are competent to the investigation of this question.—This denial forecloses all investigation whatever, as the ordinary tribunals of justice, were prevented from acting by the refusal of the grand jury to find bills of indictment.—Thus has the interfention of the military, the imprudence of the grand jury, and the denial of the prince, presented a case entirely new to excite popular discontent and opposition to the government. The question of reform is now lost in a question of superior magnitude. Every dispersion of the people by military force after this, will we venture to assert add fuel to the flame. The prince regent has formerly adopted the cause of the military, and it is well known that his ministers are responsible for all his acts. It will be now said, that the prince rules by military law—that men peaceably assembling to petition for a redress of their grievances, were murdered in cold blood by the military—that the courts of law refused to take any cognizance of the case; and finally, that the ministers have solemnly denied this act of justice to the nation. If this representation is not substantially correct, it comes as near the fact as party representation generally do. Meetings of the people are again advertised to be holden, as if they are resolved to brave military force, every intervention on their part renders them more odious in the eyes of the people. The lord mayor of London had attempted to convene a city council, and was unable to do it from the turbulence of the populace. This is a striking fact, for it shews the depth of the impression made on the minds of the people. Earl Grosvenor and the Marquis of Tavistock have made the sufferers of Manchester a present in money; a sum trifling in amount, but it serves to shew that the higher classes have begun already to adopt the cause of the reformers. It is at such seasons, that opposition to the government becomes formidable. When the higher classes lend to a discontented and unruly populace, the sanction of their countenance, the people enrol themselves under their banner, and desert their orator Hunt, as a champion, with as little ceremony as ever they adopted him.

The paper further states, that Prince Blucher, the most formidable of all the enemies of Buonaparte, is no more; he has lived to see the conqueror of Europe at his feet, on the plains of Waterloo, for it is a fact, that it was Blucher that turned the tide of fortune on that memorable day. At the time that Wellington ordered his charge, as he states himself in his official dispatch, he knew of the arrival of Blucher. With that rapacious avarice for fame so peculiar to great minds, he seized the favorable moment, when victory would have been snatched from his grasp by the hand of Blucher, and ordered a charge through the whole line.

The following tribute of respect is paid to the memory of our much beloved Perry, in the Hamilton, Bermuda Gazette, of the 25th September, after giving the detailed account as heretofore published in the American papers.

"We have been thus particular in noticing this incident, not only for the information of our American correspondents, but from respect to the character of a brave and good man. His bravery was conspicuously manifested in a naval action on Lake Erie, on the 10th of September, 1813, and his goodness was evinced after the action, by his generosity and politeness to the prisoners who fell into his hands. He refused to receive the swords of Com. Barclay and his officers; the swords passed several times back and forward between the two commanders, but Perry persisted in his refusal to receive them; and as an additional mark of his liberality he advanced our officers a thousand dollars on his own account, to defray their expenses by travelling to the places assigned them. He was a native of Rhode-Island, descended from a family of respectability in Devonshire, England."

BURNS'S MAUSOLEUM.

We are happy to say, that at length the mausoleum over the remains of Burns is so far completed, as to leave the marble monument, by Turnerill, erected in it. The subject is taken from the bard's dedication to the Caledonian Hunt, when he says, "My lords and gentlemen, the Poetic Genius of my country found me, as the prophetic bard Elijah did Elisha, at the plough, and threw her inspiring mantle over me." A full length figure of Burns (the size of life) is represented as standing between the handles of the plough; his attention appears arrested; he has one hand on the plough, and with the other he holds the Scotch bonnet to his breast and looks upward, with a steady attention, to the Genius of Poetry, who is hovering above, and in the act of drawing her flowing mantle so as to throw it over him; the Genius seems beholding the bard with a look of placid satisfaction. The workmanship is excellent. The figure of the poet is manly, and the expression of the countenance is good. To those who have seen Burns, perhaps they will not be gratified in finding a very correct likeness, nor was it to be expected. The plough rests on the pedestal, seems in the act of uptearing a tuft of mountain daises. The whole group, of white statuary marble, rests against a back of dove-colored marble, and occupies a space of about 12 feet in height and seven in length. The only inscription on the pedestal is—"Burns." [London pap.

SINGULAR EFFECT OF PERUVIAN BARK.

A French merchant at Gunyra, named Delpech, in 1806, had occasion to receive several travellers, inhabitants of those countries.—The apartments destined for visiters being filled, and the number of his guests increasing, he was under the necessity of putting several of them in rooms occupied by cinchona. Each of them contained from 8 to 10,000 pounds of that bark. One of his guests was ill of a very malignant fever. After the first day he found himself much better, though he had taken no medicine; but he was surrounded with an atmosphere of cinchona, which appeared very agreeable to him. In a few days he felt himself quite recovered, without any medical treatment whatever. This unexpected success led M. Delpech to make some other trials. Several persons, ill of fever, were placed successively in his magazine of cinchona, and they were all speedily cured, simply by the effluvia of the bark. In the same place with the cinchona, he kept a bale of coffee, and some bottles of common French brandy. In some time M. Delpech, when visiting his magazine, observed one of the large bottles uncorked. He suspected at first the fidelity of a servant, and determined to examine the quality of the brandy. What was his astonishment to find it infinitely superior to what it had been! A slightly aromatic taste added to its strength, and rendered it more tonic & more agreeable. Curious to know if the coffee had likewise changed its properties, he opened the bale, and roasted a portion of it. It was more bitter and left in the mouth a taste similar to that of the effluvia of bark.—The bark which produced these singular effects was fresh. Would the cinchona of commerce have the same efficacy?

GERTRUDE VONDER WART.

An Affecting Story.

Among those who were accused as accomplices in the assassination of the emperor Albert, by John of Swabis, was the baron Vonder Wart, though according to the unanimous testimony of earlier and later historians, he had not taken any immediate part in the deed itself. He was bound alive to the wheel. His wife, Gertrude, did not forsake her unhappy husband even in his last moments, and she described those dreadful hours in the following letter to Margarethe Freinstein, which is inserted in a book published at Haarlem in 1818, under the following title "Gertrude Vonder Wart, or Fidelity till Death: true history, of the 14th century, by J. C. Appenzeller."

"I prayed under the scaffold on which my husband was fastened alive upon the wheel, and exhorted him to fortitude.—I then arose, and with thick pieces of wood, built myself a kind of steps, by means of which I could mount up to the wheel, laid myself upon his trembling limbs and head, and stroked the hair from his face, which the wind had blown all over it."—"I beseech you, leave me! Oh, I beseech you;" he exclaimed continually. "When day breaks, if you should be found here what would be your fate; and what new misery will you bring upon me! Oh God! is it possible that thou canst still increase my sufferings."

"I will die with you—'tis for that I come, and no power shall force me from you," said I, and spread out my arms over him, and implored God for my Rudolph's death.

The day broke slowly, when I saw many people in motion opposite us; I replaced the thick pieces of wood where I had found them. It was the guard who had fled on my appearance, but had remained near the spot, and as it seemed, caused a report to be made of what had passed: for at day break all the people, men, women and children, came flocking out of the town.

Among these people I recognized the gaoler, who had given me up the preceding evening to Von Landenberg.—The report must also have reached him, that I had been with my husband, for he approached me shaking his head and said, "Woman, this was not the intention when Landenberg fetched you yesterday!"

As more people approached, I saw also several women of my acquaintance, among them was the wife of the bailiff Hugo Von Winterthur; I saluted, and begged her intervention with her husband, that he might order the executioner to put an end to my husband's cruel sufferings.

"He dare not do any thing for me," sighed Wart upon the wheel, again moving his head at this moment, and looking down upon me with his swollen eyes—"he dare not do any thing; the queen pronounced the sentence, and the bailiff must therefore obey; otherwise I had well deserved of him that he should do me this last kindness."

Some persons brought me bread and confectionary, and offered me wine to refresh me, but I could take nothing; for the tears that were shed, and the pity that animated every heart, and was kindly expressed, was to me the most agreeable refreshment. As it grew lighter, the number of people increased: I recognized also the sheriff Steiner Von Pfungen, with his two sons Conrad and Datliken; also a Madame Von Neftenbach, who was praying for us.

The executioner came also; then Lampucht the confessor: the first said with a sigh; "God have compassion with this unhappy man, and comfort his soul!" the latter asked Rudolph if he would not yet confess? Wart with a dreadful exertion of all his strength, repeated the same words that he had called out to the Queen before the tribunal at Brugk. The priest was silent.

All at once I heard a cry of "make way," and a troop of horsemen approached with their vizors down.

The executioner kneeled, the confessor laid his hand on his breast, the horsemen halted.—Fathers and mothers held up their children in their arms and the guard with their lances formed a circle, while the tallest of the knights raised himself in his stirrups, and said to the executioner, "Whither are the crows flown that he still keeps his eyes?" and this was Duke Leopold.

My heart ceased to beat when another knight with a scornful smile said; "Let him writhe as long as he has feeling! but them people must be gone.—Confounded wretches! this sighing and crying makes me mad! No pity must be shown here; and she here who increases the howling who is she? what does the woman want? away with her!"

I now recognized the voice of the Queen.—It was Agnes in the dress and armour of a knight. I remarked immediately that it was a woman's voice, and it is certain that it was Agnes.

"It is Wart's wife!" I heard a third knight say.—"Last night when the sentence was executed we took her with us to Kyburg. We thought that in her despair she had leaped into the moat of the castle. We have been seeking her since this morning early. God what faithful love. Let her alone, nothing can be done with her."

I here recognized the mild tempered youth, Von Landenberg. How well did he now speak for me! I could have fallen at his feet.

"Well, Gertrude!" cried a fourth tone, "will you not yet advice? do not kill yourself for the world! you pent of it."

tone. "will you not yet take rational advice? do not kill yourself! save yourself for the world! you will not repent of it."

Who was this Margarethe? I trembled; it was she who wanted me at Brugk, to leave the criminal Wart to his fate, and pass days of joy with her. Then I too could almost have exclaimed, "God this is too much! cease!"

Agnes made a sign to an esquire to raise me up, and bring me away from the scaffold. He approached me, but I threw my arm round it, and implored my own and my husband's death: but in vain! two men dragged me away.—I besought assistance of Heaven: it was granted me.

Von Landenberg (otherwise a faithful servant of Austria) once more ventured to speak for me. "Cease to humble her: such fidelity is not found on earth; angels in heaven must rejoice at it; but it would be good if the people were driven away."

They let me loose again; the horsemen departed; tears flowed from Lamprecht's eyes; he had acted strictly according to his duty, and executed the will of the Queen: he could now listen to the voice of nature and weep with me. "I can hold out no longer, noble lady! I am vanquished! your name shall be mentioned with glory among the saints in heaven, for this world will forget it. Be faithful unto death, and I will give you the crown of life," said he—gave me his hand and departed.

But I lay, as if guarded and wonderfully strengthened by God's Angels & the Saints, continually praying near the wheel on which the whole world reposed.

During this time my thoughts were with God. As often as a sigh broke from the breast of my Rudolph, it was a dagger in my heart. But I remember the Holy Virgin, how she too had suffered under the cross of her Son, and consoled myself with the hope that after a short time of suffering, the eternal joys of heaven would be my portion, and this gave me courage to suffer; I know too, for whom I suffered, and this gave me strength to the combat, so that I endured to the very last moment.

Though Wart had at first so earnestly begged of me not to increase his agonies by my presence, yet he now thanked me as much for not having left him; in my prayers to God he found consolation and refreshment, and it was a comfort to his soul when I prayed.

How the last dreadful morning and noon were spent, permit me to pass over in silence. A few hours before evening, Rudolph moved his head for the last time; I raised myself up to him. He murmured very faintly, but with smiling love upon his lips; "Gertrude, this is fidelity till death," and expired. On my knees I thanked God for the grace which he had given me to remain faithful to the end.

Removed from Fairfax-street to the corner of King and Columbus streets, and his prices falling, RESPECTFULLY acquaints his customers and the citizens in general that he has removed as above, where he will study to give satisfaction. S. Drew aware, of the advantage a ready money business has over one where long credit is given, thinks that a distinction ought to be made in the prices in each case: and as the price of provisions are low at present, he is glad to be able to announce to those customers who will feel disposed to pay him ready money for his work, that he will reduce the price of making to them according to the present journeymen's wages; and to prevent any supposed imposition on the one hand or disatisfaction on the other he is willing to be governed by the printed regulations of prices by which the journeymen are paid in Alexandria.

N. B. Bread, flour, beef, groceries, liquors or any thing valuable taken in exchange for clothes.

S. Drew has this day opened a tavern in the same house, where he has laid in a supply of Philadelphia and the district porter and ale, together with liquors of the best quality, and he feels confident that he shall be able to give satisfaction to all who will please to favor him with a call.—He is fitting up his house for the accommodation of boarders, travellers, &c. and from its central situation, good beds and stabling, together with other requisites, he presumes that it will be found a convenient establishment.

Was Committed,

TO the jail for the county of Alexandria on the 3d inst. as a runaway, a negro man called BEN HENDERSON, supposed to be the property of George Thornton, of King George county. The said negro is about 50 years of age; 5 feet 6 inches high; bald head; and a shoemaker by trade. The owner is desired to come prove property, pay charges, and take him away, otherwise he will be disposed of as the law directs.

100 Dollars Reward.

RAN away on the 28th of April, from the farm of the subscriber, in Dogue Neck, Fairfax Co. Virginia, negro HARRY, aged about twenty three years, about five feet ten inches high, very black, well built, has a considerable impediment in his speech, when spoken to evinces much confusion, and replies almost unintelligibly: had on when he left home, a much worn suit of domestic cloth. I have every reason to believe that he is endeavoring to pass for a free man, and as such went off in some of the bay craft during the late fishing season. All masters of vessels are forewarned from harboring or taking into their employ said negro, under penalty of having the law rigidly enforced against them. I will give twenty dollars, if taken in the county of Fairfax, or district of Columbia; if beyond that distance, the above reward, provided he is secured in jail so that I get him again. WM. MASON.

100 Dollars Reward.

I WILL give the above reward to any person who will return to my possession, negro LAWRENCE, who assumes the sirname of FENWICK. This fellow left my farm, on the Wicomico river, in Charles county, Md. on the 6th July, in consequence of his own outrageous conduct towards my overseer. He is a negro of a fine erect figure, good features, asmooth black skin, rather above the middle stature, of a youthful appearance for one of thirty years of age, and of great plausibility and natural smartness. His ears grow remarkably close to his head, and on the inside of his lower lip he has a white mark or spot. I purchased him 4 years ago of the estate of Mrs. P. H. Courts, of this county. I am led (by circumstances which have come to my knowledge since he absconded,) to believe that he will endeavor to make his way to King George county, Va.; should he not take this route, he will probably be met within the District of Columbia, or in the upper counties of this state, on his way to Pennsylvania. I apprehend he will change his name, and if committed to jail, refuse to state to whom he belongs, as the misconduct which preceded his departure, & his absconding, have all appeared since to have been premeditated. He took all his clothes with him, of which he had a large number; among them—a new bearskin over-coat, a long close-bodied blue coat, a pair of striped jean pantaloons, one or more white waistcoats, besides many articles of coarse cloathing; these, however, he will probably exchange, or sell them for cash to defray his travelling expenses.

I will give the above reward to any person who will bring him home to me, or FIFTY DOLLARS if confined in jail, and notice given me, so that I recover him.—Should he be taken out of the state, I will also pay all reasonable costs and charges which may attend the bringing him home.

West Hatton, near Allen's Fresh Post-Office, Charles county, Maryland.
